Baby Helps Crack Dope Ring

Littlest Detective

NEW YORK (UP)—A detective's 18-month-old daughter received a "well done" citation from the police department yesterday. She began her own crime-busting career by teaming up with a gabby policeman to help crack a narcotics ring and seize $250,000 worth of heroin.

The child and policeman posed as a mother and daughter who loved the open air in a Bronx neighborhood. They became so friendly with an alleged peddler that he sometimes paused to chuck the baby under the chin.

Also participating in the case were detectives posing as a truck driver, a telephone repairman and two gas company meter readers.

As a result of the sleuthing two men were arrested and the heroin was seized. The men were identified as Louis Woodward, 49, and John Vinci, 24.

The name of the baby and her father were withheld in the interest of police work. But Detective Isabelle Barber, 27, was identified as the "mother who chattered her way through the Bronx neighborhood, getting to know as many persons as possible."

Miss Barber soon established herself as the neighborhood chatterbox. She talked to strollers, housewives, delivery boys and merchants. She also stopped to talk to the detectives posing as workmen who turned up from time to time in the neighborhood.

When Miss Barber decided she had the goods on the men being sought, the police closed in. The littlest detective was left home in her crib.

An RAF spokesman said the raids caused "severe damage" to the rebel-held fort of Iqdi, 50 miles from the Oman capital of Nizwa.

Nizwa is the stronghold of the imam of Oman, leading a rebellion against the British-backed sultan of Muscat and Oman, ruler of an independent state on the tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

The RAF spokesman said the British pilots first ensured there was no sign of movement in the vicinity and then loosed their rockets on the massive structure of the fort, which has walls five feet thick.

The attack followed the expiry of an ultimatum warning the rebels to quit the area.

More raids are planned for today against a rebel headquarters fort at Nizwa if an other ultimatum is not accepted, the British spokesman said.

Jets Blast Fort—Nobody Home

BAHRAIN, Persian Gulf (Reuters)—RAF jet fighters pounded a mud fort with rocket fire 12 times Wednesday in the first air offensive against a rebellion in the tiny Arab state of Oman.

An RAF spokesman said the raids caused "severe damage" to the rebel-held fort of Iqdi, 50 miles from the Oman capital of Nizwa.

Nose Bit Off

VANCOUVER (CP)—A six-week-old girl lost the tip of her nose at Royal Columbia Hospital when another baby climbed into her crib and bit it off.

The incident was not discovered until the three-year-old boy had returned to his crib.

Hospital officials said the baby also suffered other bites on the face but these now are healing.

The incident happened about 7 a.m. July 14.

Hospital officials said there was at least one nurse's aide in the ward at the time but she did not see the incident.

Parents In City With Plea

A delegation of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors was reported to be in Victoria last night to plead with government officials to release 100 children detained at the New Denver camp, for "summer holidays."

The delegation—three couples with children at New Denver—said, when passing through Vancouver, that they will try to see welfare and education officials.

Education department officials said last night that as far as was known, no attempt has been made to lodge an official request by the delegation so far.

Peter Elasoof, of Krestova said in Vancouver yesterday that "nobody will want to see us (in Victoria) but we plan to stay until somebody does."

He said a court decision on the legality of the New Denver detention has been adjourned until September.

"We ask the immediate release of the children pending the court decision, especially in view of the fact that attending school is not requested during official summer holidays."

Ugly Battles

Violence Reigns As Strikes Stagger Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—The worst strike violence in more than 30 years hit Britain Wednesday as London police clashed with market handlers and bus workers roughed up passengers.

Not since the general strike of 1926 has Britain known strike warfare. Despite pleas by union leaders, battles with police and the public continued and grew uglier.

Club-swinging policemen fought bottle-throwing strikers at London's Covent Garden fruit and vegetable market. A truck loaded with fruit was set afire and crates of produce were smashed.

Some 3,500 handlers in London's five main markets have refused to work in protest against a new working system proposed by employers.

Striking provincial bus workers punched one woman and threw another into a hedge in Cornwall in a walkout which has forced some owners to ask for greater protection—including the use of armed force if necessary to keep buses running.

The bus strike, involving 100,000 members of six unions, started Friday over demands for 11-a-week pay increase to cut the gap between provincial and London rates.

The strike violence—which has produced angry letters to newspapers—brought a front-page editorial appeal from the Liberal London Star to Frank Coyle, leader of the six unions in the Transport and General Workers' Union, to call off "the hooligans."

The tabloid Daily Sketch urges union leaders and leaders of the opposition Labor Party to unite in condemning violence.

"Why doesn't Gaitskell (Labor leader Hugh Gaitskell) condemn violence?" the Sketch asked. "End this shameful silence."

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (BUE)—Violence flared here yesterday at the strike-bound Canada Vitri-fied Products plant when pickets hurled rocks and lighted high-ways flares to stop three trucks loaded with tiles from leaving the plant yard.

Doing just about as well as the boys is first-time fisherman, Marion Small, 13, 1034 Linden, who took second-place honors in the derby. See story Page 6.

'Deal' Laid To U.K.

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union has accused Britain of initiating a "deal" which would delay world disarmament so that Britain could strengthen its stockpile of nuclear weapons.

The charges were contained in a sharply-phrased personal letter from Premier Bulganin to Prime Minister Macmillan.

Bulganin's note also said that:

1. Britain made a "deal" with other Western powers to delay the disarmament talks to help Adenauer win re-election Sept. 15.

2. The Soviet Union insists on the unconditional ban of nuclear weapons tests.

Skip Middle Man Says Fruit Buyer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A fruit buyer for a national department store chain said his company would favor buying fruit direct from growers and bypass the wholesaler.

Answering questions put by commissioner E. D. MacPhee at the royal commission into the B.C. tree fruit industry, Alexander Klassen of the T. Eaton company said his firm would "soon enough establish adequate storage facilities."

All fruits at present handled by B.C. Tree Fruits Limited pass through Canadian Fruit Distributors, the wholesale organization owned by the growers.

Suggestion Causes Runny Noses!

You Only Think You've Got a Cold

WASHINGTON (NANA)—The majority of "common colds" may exist only in the mind.

This thesis is advanced by Dr. Robert J. Huebner, chief of the public health service laboratory of infectious diseases, in a report just published.

The cold's cause has yet to be found, despite the most intensive search, he points out.

And experiments with volunteers show that all the cold symptoms can be produced by suggestion alone.

Colds usually are attributed to a filterable virus. This, says Dr. Huebner, seems only an attempt on the part of doctors to "explain an essentially unexplainable illness."

"In my opinion," Dr. Huebner reports, "the term 'common cold' containing or virus-free materials.

Recent work with volunteers has convinced some of us that a large number of so-called common colds are not due to viruses but to other factors, not the least of which are of psychosomatic origin.

"The symptoms of the common cold have occurred in a high proportion of volunteers, whether or not they received virus-containing or virus-free materials.

"Evaluation of some of these volunteers showed in psychological tests a rather significant association of high gullibility scores with complaints of upper respiratory illness.

"In fact, our observations in numerous volunteer studies indicate that susceptibility to suggestion represents a more powerful inciter of runny noses than any virus we have yet discovered.

"Innocuous control materials of the absenteeism attributable to common colds. It is difficult for a virologist to conceive of viruses behaving in so illogical a fashion.

"I might add, as the father of six children in school, I cannot escape the feeling that there is a very definite association of colds with Monday morning.

Perhaps there is a Monday trial workers contributed most morning virus."

If William Shakespeare had been able to hire such publicity men as those who are working for the Stratford (Ontario) Shakespeare festival, he would probably be a rich man today.

However, he refused to advertise and as a result he achieved only modest success. History is littered with examples like his.

Many observers have wondered why a man so lacking in business sense became so widely known. But the sharp ones added up the clues and produced the obvious answer: That Shakespeare was a phony.

He was only a front for someone with real executive ability, not a dramatic poet and actor. The dramatic

Haunted by Notion

"Ever since the initiation of the Shakespeare Festival . . . I have been haunted by the notion that I had solved the mystery of the authorship of the plays attributed to that semi-literate rural poacher who graduated into dramatics as a stable-boy at the Globe Theatre," Mr. Milligan writes. "I have tried to dismiss the idea as foolish but it persisted year after year as I read the glowing accounts of the productions at the festival. And now, having read in the Globe and Mail the vivid descriptions of the production of Dr. Guthrie's version of Twelfth Night, the notion has become a conviction."

"Dr. Guthrie . . . is too modest a man to make any (such) claim. Yet we are told (by the Globe and Mail reviewer) that Dr. Guthrie has disclosed the subtle and inner meanings of the plays which have escaped the observation of 'lesser men'."

The review said: "Now comes Dr. Guthrie to examine the play . . . most wisely and lovingly. To find in it rare beauties, indescribable patios, great humor and some wit, too. In doing so, Dr. Guthrie has created a production such as has never been seen before . . ."

"Strange, that after three centuries it remained for this Dr. Guthrie to reveal to the world the incomparable greatness of William Shakespeare . . ."

Masked Men Grab $30,476 From Bank

MONTREAL (CP)—Two armed men, both wearing masks and sunglasses, held up an east-end branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale for $30,476 at opening time Wednesday after emerging from a hiding place inside the bank.

The pair surprised the incoming staff after apparently hiding in the furnace room, but bank officials said they could not explain how the men got inside the bank in the first place.

Earlier estimates placed the amount stolen at about $10,000.

He Loves Giving Money Away

By COURTNEY TOWER

Gene Levy was having a fine time, hiring dancing girls and making piles of money, until his doctor halted the gay proceedings in 1922. Since then he has travelled around the world several times, giving a host of friends and making away, so far, $1,000,000. This place had only about 30,000 people tending bar in a local club. Through Bill, he met Victoria's 17-year-old Frank Merryfield, a local grocery, seven years later went into real estate and in 1928 went into show business.

That meant owning 23 theatres in the Pacific Northwest, 22 silent motion picture houses and one musical comedy hall, Levy's Orpheum, in Seattle. It is being torn down at Third

During this salad-day period, he was hiring dancing girls for the Orpheum—24 girls to the line and a different line every week.

Things were getting so tough Mr. Levy is here, for a rest, with his wife and daughter, side by side for seven years. Mr. Levy said, "When I realized I could claim them and sign them over to some group, I did, and I have never received so much money."

But he could remember and look back fondly to the time when "showing" not a fifth but a full quart like you have here sold for $1 . . . and long ago, stayed in a room in this hotel for $125 a month. Now it's $16 a day."

Mr. Levy is the former wife of the late Maj. R. C. Simonds, MC, of Vancouver, an officer in the Seaforth Highlanders during the Second World War.

Old Drug Hailed As Arthritis Aid

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver doctor has won world attention in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis by adapting an old drug to a new use.

Dr. Arthur W. Bagnall reported he has been swamped with queries since presenting his findings on the drug chloroquine to an international medical congress in Toronto. During 4½ years of use he has found the drug successful in treating just over two-thirds of his rheumatoid arthritis patients.

He said daily doses of Chloroquine cost patients between $2.50 and $3 a month—only a fraction of the cost of cortisone.

Unlike cortisone in many cases, the drug can be given to patients for years without them developing a tolerance or severe reactions to it.

Chief May Get Own Overpass

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific Great Eastern Railway is considering building an overpass so Chief Mathias Joe of the Capilano Indians can reach his front door without crossing the tracks.

Indian agent F. E. Anfield said Wednesday the railway has recognized the chief's right of way following consultations with federal officials. An ancient trail leading to his waterfront home in North Vancouver was crossed a year ago by a nine-track PGE freight yard.

While the discussions have been in progress, trains parked in the yard have been divided to permit free passage on the trail. The overpass is being considered as a compromise, Mr. Anfield said.

Upset Me, Upset My Dog

VANCOUVER — Dogs are immune to such human ailments as heart disease and alcoholism, but man can give his best friend many mental complaints, says Dr. J. H. Steele, U.S. chief veterinary public health officer. He told the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association a dog tends to reflect its master's psychological attitude and anxieties, but cats are able to ignore these entirely.

TORONTO — Postmaster General William Hamilton says he is not considering any radical changes in Canada's postal system. His four weeks' experience at the job has shown him an organization which, basically, is working efficiently, he says.

EDMONTON — Rev. E. G. Hansell has resigned as national president of the Social Credit party because of failing health and "other obligations." National leader Solon Low is assuming the president's duties until a successor is named.

PENTICTON — If Canada established relations with Red China, "tremendous trade" might be developed with that nation of more than 600,000,000 people. Elmore Philpott, columnist and former Liberal MP, told Penticton Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. — A county health officer who in the past has been one of the severest critics of Bertha "Mom" Whyte's home for needy children here, says Mrs. Whyte could not be blamed for the death of a six-year-old boy found choked to death. Dr. Charlotte Horner said neither the organization nor the facilities of the home could be blamed.

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative strength in the Commons has been increased by one to 111 through acceptance of Henri Courtemanche into the party caucus.

Elected as an Independent Progressive Conservative, he can now be designated as a Progressive Conservative.

EDMONTON — A measles epidemic among Indians and Eskimos in the Northwest Territories has been brought under control, according to Dr. W. I. Falconer of Edmonton regional superintendent of Indian and northern health services.

EDMONTON — Seventeen-year-old Jimmy Anderson, struck in the head with a baseball four days ago, was flown from his Dawson Creek, B.C., home to an Edmonton hospital by the RCAF Wednesday night. His condition is critical.

RENO, Nev. — Mrs. Thelma Pringle, 50, San Francisco widow who last month won $140,000 in the Irish sweepstakes, and bartender Stuart McManus, 47, were married Tuesday. Tax experts said the marriage would save her about $16,000 in income taxes.

LONDON — Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, noted British biologist, left London Tuesday with his wife to live in India.

"I want to live in a free country where there are no foreign troops based all over the place," he said. "Yes, I do mean the Americans when I say foreign troops." The 64-year-old scientist and his wife, Dr. Helen Spurway, flew to Calcutta.

LA JOLLA, Calif. — A reward of $500 has been offered by actor Cornell Wilde for arrest and conviction of a thief who stole $25 from his wife. "It's a matter of principle," he said. "I don't want crime to pay for any one."

WHITE LAKE, Ont. — Some 100 airmen joined Ontario Provincial Police Wednesday to comb this heavily wooded area of lakes and streams in search of Sgt. C. A. WeLarose, who vanished mysteriously on his way to Ottawa from Edmonton by car last week. His car was found abandoned on a dead-end country road near here Sunday night.

Chief May Get Own Overpass

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific Great Eastern Railway is considering building an overpass so Chief Mathias Joe of the Capilano Indians can reach his front door without crossing the tracks.

Indian agent F. E. Anfield said Wednesday the railway has recognized the chief's right of way following consultations with federal officials. An ancient trail leading to his waterfront home in North Vancouver was crossed a year ago by a nine-track PGE freight yard.

While the discussions have been in progress, trains parked in the yard have been divided to permit free passage on the trail. The overpass is being considered as a compromise, Mr. Anfield said.

Upset Me, Upset My Dog

VANCOUVER — Dogs are immune to such human ailments as heart disease and alcoholism, but man can give his best friend many mental complaints, says Dr. J. H. Steele, U.S. chief veterinary public health officer. He told the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association a dog tends to reflect its master's psychological attitude and anxieties, but cats are able to ignore these entirely.

TORONTO — Postmaster General William Hamilton says he is not considering any radical changes in Canada's postal system. His four weeks' experience at the job has shown him an organization which, basically, is working efficiently, he says.

EDMONTON — Rev. E. G. Hansell has resigned as national president of the Social Credit party because of failing health and "other obligations." National leader Solon Low is assuming the president's duties until a successor is named.

PENTICTON — If Canada established relations with Red China, "tremendous trade" might be developed with that nation of more than 600,000,000 people, Elmore Philpott, columnist and former Liberal MP, told Penticton Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. — A county health doctor who in the past has been one of the severest critics of Bertha "Mom" Whyte's home for needy children here, says Mrs. Whyte could not be blamed for the death of a six-year-old boy found choked to death. Dr. Charlotte Horner said neither the organization nor the facilities of the home could be blamed.

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative strength in the Commons has been increased by one to 111 through acceptance of Henri Courtemanche into the party caucus.

Elected as an Independent Progressive Conservative, he can now be designated as a Progressive Conservative.

EDMONTON — A measles epidemic among Indians and Eskimos in the Northwest Territories has been brought under control, according to Dr. W. I. Falconer of Edmonton, regional superintendent of Indian and northern health services.

EDMONTON — Seventeen-year-old Jimmy Anderson, struck in the head with a baseball four days ago, was flown from his Dawson Creek, B.C., home to an Edmonton hospital by the RCAF Wednesday night. His condition is critical.

RENO, Nev. — Mrs. Thelma Pringle, 50, San Francisco widow who last month won $140,000 in the Irish sweepstakes, and bartender Stuart Mathias, 47, were married Tuesday. Tax experts said the marriage would save her about $16,000 in income taxes.

LONDON — Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, noted British biologist, left London Tuesday with his wife to live in India. "I want to live in a free country where there are no foreign troops based all over the place," he said. "Yes, I do mean the Americans when I say foreign troops." The 64-year-old scientist and his wife, Dr. Helen Spurway, flew to Calcutta.

LA JOLLA, Calif. — A reward of $500 has been offered by actor Cornell Wilde for arrest and conviction of a thief who stole $95 from his wife. "It's a matter of principle," he said. "I don't want crime to pay for anyone."

WHITE LAKE, Ont. — Some 100 airmen joined Ontario Provincial Police Wednesday to comb this heavily wooded area of lakes and streams in search of Pfc. Sgt. C. A. W. Larose, who vanished mysteriously on his way to Ottawa from Edmonton by car last week. His car was found abandoned on a dead-end country road near here Sunday night.

Car Industry Missing the Boat

ONE of the reasons given by the North American automobile industries for not entering the small car field has always been that the demand on this continent for small, comparatively low priced cars, is not enough to warrant the high initial cost of tooling and production. Observation of the variety of vehicles seen on the highways of Canada and to a somewhat lesser extent in the United States as well would suggest that this assumption is in error. Now to support the belief that the demand has been miscalculated come export statistics from the United Kingdom showing a remarkable increase in sales of British cars this side of the Atlantic.

During the first half of this year British car manufacturers trebled their exports to the United States, where buyers are supposed to favor the big, flashy automobiles designed by Detroit. In that period 43,000 British cars were sold to U.S. importers and another 17,000 to Canada. These are perhaps not very impressive figures in relation to the total annual sales of cars to the public in either country, but they are nevertheless a clear indication of a growing trend towards cars that are comparatively cheap to run and much easier to handle and park in city traffic than the overhanging monsters turned out by North American manufacturers.

The cars imported from Great Britain are not all in the small-or cheap-class; but most of them are. If to the imports from the U.K. are added the rapidly increasing purchases here and in the U.S. of the even smaller German cars and vans the total becomes impressive enough, one would think, to raise doubt in the minds of North American manufacturers as to whether they have been astute in assessing popular demand.

An important influence in this connection is the "two-car family." Even among people of moderate means it has become common to own a family car and another for the wife to use in shopping or visiting. For this the small English and German cars fill the bill admirably. Cost of repairs is another factor. The average North American car with its fish-tails and elaborate grillwork is expensive to repair after only a minor bump or scrape.

Some influential manufacturing and marketing organizations in Canada have stated baldly that the automobile factories in this country are missing the boat by copying U.S. styling and not availing themselves of opportunity in the small-car field. The success of British and European exporters appears to verify this.

Industrial Statistics

INDUSTRIAL statistics in this country and elsewhere would mean more if they were recorded in terms of production rather than in dollar value. A million tons of coal, for instance, is a recognizable volume of output; while its dollar equivalent might, and probably would, be different in every year during any recent decade under review. For exporting provinces such as British Columbia it is becoming almost meaningless to measure the output by its dollar equivalent. By that standard there can be little comparison year by year, depending on the value of the dollar and what it would buy at home or abroad.

The same objection would apply in almost every country in the world. In Canada, however, it is the more pertinent because of the frequent fluctuations in the value of money and also its foreign exchange equivalents. Not two economists in this country seem to agree upon what is the value of the Canadian dollar today, let alone predict what may be its index even three years hence. Meanwhile a ton of coal, a thousand cubic feet of lumber, and 100,000 bushels of No. 1 Northern wheat have a standard measure and involve about the same effort in any given period. Also when stated in physical standards of measurement they are comparable with past records, and that is the chief value of statistics—a yardstick for the purposes of comparison.

Impressive as the dollar-value of production may be—and in inflationary times when the actual value of money is falling it can be truly impressive—is it a realistic yardstick to apply? British Columbia's primary production last year or ten years ago can be stated in absolute terms without reference to monetary indices which may change every year in the interval. It is true that in some instances both volume and value are recorded in the official statistics of the province; but that course is not too often followed by the public itself. An instance on a national plane was the political use of the Liberals made of the "gross national product," which supposedly guarded against every contingency by the inclusion of components, still emerged as the dollar-value for the nation's output. A more impressive figure would be the gross volume of production itself, in terms used the world over and universally understood.

Certainly until there is something like stability in the value of currency, in this country and elsewhere, it would be a gain to measure production in terms which may be assessed. British Columbia would not suffer in the process. Allowing for periodic market changes, its physical output has risen steadily during the last century. And this was work done.

Interesting Experiment

THE provincial government's decision to adopt a uniform luncheon break for B.C.'s public offices is an interesting experiment. Vital services which cannot be interrupted will be the only exception. The general offices, with which the public has most contact, will be closed at noon and re-opened at 1 p.m., commencing next month. The public is more likely to welcome the change than otherwise. In no fashion that one can suggest will it be hurt.

The benefits to the service itself should be many. The one-hour break will have as its corollary public offices that are fully staffed during working hours. This will take the place of schedules in which the luncheon break extended anywhere from 11:30 to 2:30 p.m., with a portion of the office staffs going to lunch in relays throughout the interval. Under the new system, if it proves satisfactory on trial, the public will know it can do business with the province in all of its offices during normal business hours, and that during that time full staffs will be on hand.

The compression of luncheon hours into a single, uniform period may have an indirect effect here in the capital city, Victoria may experience a noon-hour peak of traffic matching that of the five o'clock rush. Such a result would have its traffic angle, but there should be compensations even in that. A Civil Service break at noon might stimulate retail trading within the city limits during its incidence. Large numbers of the Civil Service are engaged in Victoria and their movements affect community arrangements at many points.

Notwithstanding possible new traffic peaks, the plan is certainly worth a test. Its value in expediting provincial business can hardly be questioned, while its interference with the public in any critical degree seems remote.

Walking Tightrope in Kerala

By V. M. NAIR
Reuters Correspondent

TRIVANDRUM, Kerala State, India (Reuters)—A short, dark-skinned country squire is the most important, and probably also the most worried, Communist in India today.

As the first elected Communist chief minister of any state in India, E. M. S. Namboodiripad, the 48-year-old head of Kerala State in southern India, is the darling of the Indian Communist party and the focus of attention of Prime Minister Nehru and his Congress party.

A simple man, once one of the wealthiest on the west coast and a trenchant critic of those in power, Namboodiripad has yet to get accustomed to his new rôle of responsible minister.

Political observers here believe that what Namboodiripad does in the next few months will have far reaching repercussions on the future of the Indian Communist party. His success in solving the problems of Kerala State would boost the stock of the Communist party among the Indian public, while any lack of success would have the opposite effect.

The problems facing the new Communist government in Kerala State already have defeated two political parties, the Congress and the Praja Socialist, both of whom tried, to find a solution and failed.

The Communists were elected in Kerala on a series of what other political parties described as "unresponsible and wild promises" of guaranteed minimum wages, a substantial increase in salaries for low-paid employees, better housing, land for the farmers and jobs for every able-bodied adult.

The Communists say that they are determined to implement their election pledges. Their difficulty is where to find the money with which to do it.

One of the election pledges given by the Communists was nationalization of all foreign-owned plantations in the state. Here they found an obstacle. The central government in New Delhi turned down the proposal.

This clash of views and policies between Communist-controlled Kerala State and the central government in New Delhi has not yet come into the open. At present, there is an uneasy truce, with the Communists proclaiming their intention to work within the Indian constitution.

This anxiety is understandable, because any violation of the provisions of the constitution would give the central government an excuse to take over the administration and put an end to Communist rule in the state. The state was put under central administration on two previous occasions.

Power

Sustaining Prosperity

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

"CAN Prosperity Be Sustained?" is the title of a recent book by Neil H. Jacoby, an American economist and a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, in which capacity he has helped to formulate policies that would promote the stability of the national economy.

Mr. Jacoby's book is not as enthralling as a romantic novel, but its style is intimate and direct. At the outset the author goes to the heart of his subject: "Can the United States have a lasting prosperity? Few Americans have definite opinions on this subject. Some, deeply impressed by the memory of the massive unemployment of the 1930s which disappeared only with the coming of war and national defence programs, believe that our present good times will end when the economy has 'caught up' with deferred demands and when peace comes to the world."

Mr. Jacoby's answer to his question is summed up in the last sentence of his book: "Prosperity can be sustained in the United States without serious lapses, so long as government manages the fiscal affairs wisely and the American people continue to build a high-incentive economy." The author deals with the problem from various points of view; from those of government, the individual, management, labor, banker and investor. He insists that the rôle of government is of vital importance in "regulating the supply of money."

"Money and credit," he says, "are truly the lifeblood of our economy. Nearly everyone works for money or pays with money for the things he buys." From this simple platitude the reader is made to realize how much his share of the currency depends upon a "high-incentive economy, wherein government actively supports the expansion of private enterprise, and the regulation of money supply."

The problem of stabilizing the economy is a complex one, because so many factors are involved in the fluctuations of a free economy. Inflation is the chief bugbear of the economist, and it is a very real deterrent to stability. It is not the amount of money in circulation that makes for prosperity, but rather its value as a medium of purchase and exchange. That value is determined by price levels. Mr. Jacoby points out that with even a slow rise in the price level, "more and more people will discover that they are losing real purchasing power by holding insurance policies, bank deposits, savings bonds, and other dollar assets. What began as a 'creeping' inflation will become a running, then a galloping inflation."

In his conclusion, Mr. Jacoby says: "The basic requisite for sustained prosperity is policies to create a high-incentive economy in the fields of personal security, public assets, money regulation, taxation, business investment, competition, and foreign economic relations. The requisite policies call only for the moderate reforms of present laws, institutions and practices—not radical innovations."

Mr. Jacoby's repeated emphasis on "high incentive" is important to his whole thesis. It means that incentive is the mainspring of individual and corporate progress and is essential to sustaining prosperity in a free society. Where there is no freedom, as in communist Russia, there is no place for private interest or enterprise. Compulsion is the only driving power in soviet industry, and the individual is dehumanized into a robot. Incentive is a voluntary impulse to thought and action, and without that creative impulse neither prosperity nor human progress can be sustained.

Reports from Ottawa

NORWAY and Canada, now the closest of friends, have much in common, including a love of liberty and a disturbing proximity to Russia.

War-time allies and NATO allies, they work closely and harmoniously in NATO and the UN, with mutual high regard and respect. Norway is a leader among the smaller nations of the western hemisphere. And nowhere, perhaps, is Canada's stock rated more highly than in Oslo.

It wasn't always thus. Thirty years ago Ottawa was glowing at Oslo for presuming to claim land in Canada's Arctic. Mackenzie King tried to buy off the Norwegians with a paltry $5,000. The Norwegians were insulted. Their prime minister publicly scorned Ottawa's offer and reaffirmed his country's claim to 50,000 square miles of land, 2,000 miles north of Winnipeg. Norway didn't particularly want this great section of what we considered "our" Arctic. But it did want suitable compensation for the man who discovered this land, Norwegian explorer Otto Sverdrup, and to recover the cost of the expedition he headed.

All this was recalled Sunday when Crown Prince Olav unveiled a monument at the little fishing village of Steinkjer in honor of Steinkjer's most illustrious native son, Capt. Sverdrup. Canada gave $1,400 towards the cost of the monument. And one of Canada's most illustrious Arctic explorers, Norwegian-born Superintendent Henry Larsen of the RCMP, the man who skipped the St. Roch through the Northwest Passage, was on hand to represent the Canadian government and people.

It is difficult to excuse the penny-pinching ingratitude of Ottawa 30 years ago, but it is not hard to understand it when you recall that it took the Second World War to open Canadian eyes to the strategic and resource value of the north.

Indeed, it wasn't until 1926 that a Canadian set foot on the islands which Sverdrup discovered and named Axel Heiberg, Amund Ringnes and Ellef Ringnes, after the backers of his expedition. What happened was that Ottawa got the wind up about a base established on Axel Heiberg by two American explorers, Donald B. MacMillan and Richard E. Byrd. So Staff Sgt. A. H. Joy of the RCMP was sent to the islands to show the flag, as it were.

Back in Norway the aged Sverdrup, needing money, got his government to agree to abandon its claim to the islands in favor of Canada if the Canadian government would make a fitting payment to him, and reimburse Heiberg and the Ringnes brothers for the expedition's cost.

This boiled down to $100,000 for Sverdrup and $200,000 for the four years, 1898-1902, that Sverdrup and his 15 companions aboard the little steamer Fram spent in the Canadian Arctic. Mackenzie King offered $3,000.

Sverdrup seems to have noted Ottawa's agitation over MacMillan and Byrd, for his next move was to threaten to sell the islands to the U.S. And the threat seems to have worked, for he subsequently went to Paris to negotiate directly with Dr. O. D. Skelton, Canadian under-secretary of state for external affairs. Skelton liked the Canadian price of $25,000 and Sverdrup rejected it. But in February, 1930, Sverdrup cut his price to $67,000 and King accepted it. Nine months later Norway formally abandoned its claim to the Sverdrup Islands, and Ottawa "liquidated an old obligation" by sending Sverdrup a cheque for $67,000.

Sverdrup, 76, got the news by cable; but by the time the cheque arrived two weeks later he was dead.

The Packstack

All of a Piece

By GREGORY CLARK

BECAUSE we are taught history when we are very young, we naturally have the impression that Sir John A. was long ago, and that Napoleon is more distant than Hitler.

They are all of a piece, like a chain; and some of our great-great ancestors certainly knew of Caesar in person—if we have any mainland European forebears—just as my grandmother knew of Napoleon in person, because her uncle served in the army against Napoleon, and spoke to Nelson in a pub in London. She told me stories of these men as matter-of-factly as you will speak to your grandchildren of Hitler or Stalin. But what we all must know is that one of our granpas, not so long ago, really, told some of our grandfathers all about Caesar, whom she had seen passing by.

Unless we become classical scholars and steep ourselves in history, we are likely to go through our whole adult lives in the assumption that the people who inhabited the earth a thousand or two thousand years ago were to all intents and purposes a different species from ourselves. The truth is, of course, that except for our style of clothing and a few similar trivialities, they were identical with us in every particular.

What the Russians and Americans are going through today, politically, socially, economically, is exactly what the Romans and Carthaginians went through, two thousand years ago, or the Persians and Greeks a few centuries before that. Human experience is continuous, and in order to believe that we have rid ourselves of the notion that Caesar was long ago, or that Napoleon is more distant than Hitler.

They are all of a piece, like a chain; and some of our great-great ancestors certainly knew of Caesar in person—if we have any mainland European forebears—just as my grandmother knew of Napoleon in person, because her uncle served in the army against Napoleon, and spoke to Nelson in a pub in London. She told me stories of these men as matter-of-factly as you will speak to your grandchildren of Hitler or Stalin. But what we all must know is that one of our granpas, not so long ago, really, told some of our grandfathers all about Caesar, whom she had seen passing by.

It suits revolutionaries perfectly that we should have this illusion of distance from the past. It is most helpful to them in the effort to cut us loose from our roots.

It is a pity that the family album has gone out of fashion. Leafing through an album in 1900 that went back in photographs and tinctypes to around 1850, you had no trouble realizing that your great-uncle Billy and Caesar both wore funny clothes.

Canadian Notebook

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

TWO memories of Canada on my way from London to Victoria will be indelible in this life. The western approach up the St. Lawrence River, always inspiring was for me sheer enchantment. It satiated with the sunset, more rich and colorful than any painter has dreamed about a luminous background of crimson, grey relieved by a foreground of black and purple clouds edged with yellow, greens and blues and laced with streaks of virginal whiteness.

I sat on the boat deck drinking it in with a silent crowd of normally raucous passengers. All of us, I am sure, were conscious of a beauty not of this world. It was one of those moments when one yearned to find an atheist and dare him to propound his views, to deny the Master Painter, the Architect, the supernatural.

As the wonder of it all began to fade below the horizon another marvel appeared.

Instead of darkness or a sky alive with twinkling fairy lights, we were passing through a hemisphere of pure gossamer. The night became illumined by a pastel radiance of indescribable beauty. Technically this miracle of beauty was the Northern Lights, mentally it was an experience of glowing spirituality, an enchanting journey gliding through another world of chiffon light and golden stars. One stayed and watched, privileged and humble. By morning it had vanished beneath a covering of black clouds which delivered a deluge of almost tropical intensity.

Perhaps it was as well. There are limits, believe it or not, to the amount of beauty the human spirit can absorb and those two enchantments of the St. Lawrence brought me as near to saturation point as I ever hope to get.

The second memory which will never vanish was at the opposite end of the trip to Victoria. We passed through the Rockies in a deluge and moments of fantastic anger. The whole heavens were alive with giant golden knives of lightning cutting mercilessly into the thick shroud which hid the peaks. Here and there it would cut the cloud to reveal a pinnacle of snow and light. A moment later it would be covered again, thunder would roar to a mighty crescendo, the golden knives would dance a fantastic ballet. There were times when the rain was so heavy that it seemed the train was running submerged along a river bed.

At one point there had been a cloudburst. We stopped and watched a team of men in oilskins packing the track with ballast where it had been washed away, then slowly crossed the repaired section—workmen and passengers waving to each other. The trainman told me that many of the men working on the track were Hungarians who moved on to some other job as soon as they can. Who can blame them?

I missed the majesty of the unforgotten Rockies but I shared an unforgettable experience of nature's anger, the fury of an awful storm which gradually melted into a liquid sunshine reflected from diamond-studded trees with only the rush of cascading rivers to remind me of the fury which had passed.

At the beginning and the end of my journey across Canada I found nature in two moods—both beautiful, both intense. Somehow it seemed to underline the serenity and struggle of a nation which has moved faster and farther than most in its short lifetime.

In Vancouver I saw in action, for the first time, the scramble crossing introduced into Victoria this week. It seemed to work well. I was intrigued because of differing viewpoints. When the idea was mooted in Britain the authorities frowned on it. They regarded it as a good idea at a controlled light crossing but hinted darkly that it would create a nation of jaywalkers who would use the same technique at uncontrolled crossings. They do anyway!

That does not seem to have happened in Vancouver where pedestrians show similar respect for traffic lights as the citizens of Victoria. This pedestrian discipline is impressive. Until six months ago police in Britain had no power to deal with pedestrians defying light signals. They have now, but hesitate to use it. The sidewalks of Britain are still one of the bastions of individual freedom.

A traveller's quip: A large gentleman who joined the transcontinental train at Ottawa and alighted at Calgary provided a helpful review of Canadian life and affairs for the benefit of this new chum. The summing up came when we bade farewell at Calgary. "Trouble with this country," he said, "is that it is too big for some of the small minds which live in it."

Brickbat to the publicity fiend who extolled the beauties of the ocean approach to Victoria. True, nature made a grand job of it; but man has done his usual best to make it ugly—unless storage tanks can become beautiful in the eyes of the beholder.

If Victoria grows big enough to justify a subway one presumes it will be called "Ye Ancient Underground."

Letters to the Editor

Master Road Plan

Your editorial of Wednesday, July 17, makes an excellent plea for integrated highway planning in metropolitan Victoria and calls for a conference of provincial government and local municipalities to study the situation. As you do not mention the role of the Capital Region Planning Board I draw your attention to the fact that the board is preparing a master plan for the future physical development of the region, including highways. This plan is well advanced and should be completed by the end of the year. These facts have been reported frequently in The Colonist as recently as March 24, May 26 and June 8.

The board is composed of representatives of the provincial government and each of the municipalities in the region. The board has a permanent technical staff as well as a committee of provincial and municipal engineers who are working on the preparation of a master highway plan. Before a plan can be prepared complete factual information must be gathered on the existing traffic patterns and on the trends in land use that are likely to affect future highway needs. These studies have been under way for some time, and will be completed this fall.

As a preliminary to the planning studies now in progress a more general report entitled, "The Capital Region Takes Stock" was published by the board in 1954. This report on the prospects of the region was available to the general public and received wide distribution.

Majority Rule

Mr. Tony Emery last Sunday asked: "Does democracy really mean that everyone must have only what the majority wants, and nothing that the majority does not want?" This surely raises the question, how are wishes of the majority determined?

How correct is it to assume that the producers of most radio and TV programs proceed on the following lines: (1) The program must please the majority or there'll be no financial return; (2) The intelligence and information of most people is low and they want escapism rather than thought-provoking programs.

Incidentally, CBU deserves high praise for its attempts to get people to think. How many, one wonders, listen to Citizens' Forum, provocative plays, or scientific presentations such as the current I.G.Y. ones?

M. N. SHERMAN.

Meddlesome Council

Is the municipal council of Oak Bay careless of its influence and effectiveness? If not, why does it waste time in meddling with a question that is really outside its purview, against the expressed wishes of the majority of its ratepayers?

On many occasions during the past years the idea of the establishment of a retail liquor store within its bounds has met with a growing and determined opposition from Oak Bay residents. The provincial liquor control board has evidently wisely decided that a liquor store is not desired by the majority, nor is there any necessity for it. And yet the council as a body apparently feels a persistent stand in this matter is needed to force the committee to change his well-considered judgment. What is the basis of this backward movement?

Is there a member of the council brave enough to give openly an adequate reason for such a surprising and unnecessary resolution? There should be a public statement in support of such a derogatory move.

Victoria Exhibition

It is good news that Victoria's Art Gallery's alert curator, Mr. Colin Graham, has sent a circular to local artists promising that this summer season's appropriate "Mass Portrait of Victoria Harbor" exhibition may possibly become an annual affair in which the various aspects of the local scene, and of the local residents and their interests and activities, may be characteristically interpreted by the local painters, sculptors and craftsmen.

Our keen-witted, inquiring visitors have expressed their astonished disappointment that in Victoria's Art Gallery (through no fault of its enterprising curator) no picture was to be found, in the city in which she was born, by Emily Carr!

Since then our Centennial Committee has allocated funds to provide means of allowing Vancouver Island's artistry to be appreciated.

Visitors come to what to them is a change of scene, generally in a spirit of inquiry, and they court a full knowledge of culture as well as the physical aspects of the country. Naturally they desire to enjoy through their visit the opportunity to contact all aspects, so as to obtain a complete impression.

Canada Will Leave One Man in Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—Only one Canadian soldier will be left in Korea after July 31.

Army headquarters announced Wednesday that 29 soldiers, the last but one of more than 2,000 to serve in the Korean theater, will have returned by the end of the month.

Staying behind is Maj. Gordon Douglas Cochrane, D.C., of New Glasgow, N.S., Canadian representative on the military armistice commission at Munsan-Ni, Korea.

The returning troops comprised the Canadian medical detachment which has provided medical and dental care for the remaining British Commonwealth troops in Korea. The entire Commonwealth contingent is being withdrawn.

Stores End Trade Stamp System

OTTAWA (CP)—Dominion Stores Ltd. and its subsidiary, Thrift Stores Ltd., announced Wednesday the cancellation, effective today, of the trading stamp promotion which they have carried on in this area during the last nine months.

Thomas G. McCormack, president of Dominion, said Wednesday:

"Our defensive action has served its purpose. With all major food outlets giving away stamps, none had any sales advantage, yet all had to bear the heavy cost of stamp promotion." He said outstanding stamps will be redeemed and "a simpler form" of premium used.

Seriously Ill

A. J. Touchings, fisheries inspector for the Victoria district, is seriously ill in the Veterans' Hospital. He is being temporarily relieved by Lloyd Gudwill, inspector for the Cowichan area.

Strikers Imperil Safety

VANCOUVER (CP)—Officials expressed concern Wednesday that serious accidents may be caused by the lack of traffic signals at intersections in Vancouver. A strike of 37 city electricians has resulted in complete or partial failure of the lights.

Several thousand street lights have burned out and signals at 80 intersections have stopped working or become faulty since the strike started more than seven weeks ago.

Jim Plaskett, secretary of the Vancouver traffic and safety council said the council is "becoming more and more concerned for the safety of pedestrians at intersections without traffic signals."

Superintendent Ralph Booth of the city police traffic division said officers are doing their utmost to control intersections. But he said there is possibility of serious accidents when lights go out before officers have been able to put up stop signs.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is sued a statement Wednesday saying the union maintains an emergency staff 24 hours a day to do work considered vital for preservation of life and property.

It said it reserves the right to decide whether any request for such service constitutes an emergency.

The union originally asked for a 20 per cent increase. In subsequent negotiations the city has offered increases totalling 17 per cent over a two-year period and the union has asked raises totalling 23½ per cent.

No Purge Of Liberals Word Kept

By NORMAN M. MACLEOD

OTTAWA (BUP)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker is being given high credit in impartial circles here for his determined resistance to pressure from extremists in his own party to revive the spoils system in Canadian politics.

Parliament Hill veterans agree that no previous change of government has ever been carried out with less disturbance to civil service personnel than the accession of the Conservatives to power on the present occasion.

ORDERS GIVEN

In no department of the public service has there been any purge of employees. Cabinet sources say that Prime Minister Diefenbaker has issued strict instructions that there shall be none.

His ministerial colleagues declare he is resolved that his spectacular smashing of the 22-year-old Liberal administration shall not be tarnished by identification with any revival of the disgraceful spoils system.

The decision is no easy one for the prime minister to maintain. From all parts of the nation office-hungry Conservatives, starved almost to desperation by 22 long years of exclusion from patronage, have been wiring, writing and presenting in person their claims.

LIBERALS NAMED

In most cases the claims are accompanied, in order to simplify the task of the new Conservative government, with specific suggestions as to which Liberals should be supplanted.

In some cases Conservative MPs have been to the capital in support of their Tory constituents' impatience for a Liberal bath.

They have all gone home empty-handed.

Cabinet ministers say that the pressure for immediate and savage patronage has come from all parts of the country, with no area completely innocent of the desire to see swift retribution overtake civil servants who happen to hold Liberal political views.

These old-line Tory advocates of patronage, including some of the MP's themselves, are charged rather than impressed by what they consider the impractical stand of the Diefenbaker cabinet. What the ministers regard as essentially sound policy in the long run, they condemn

Rains Expected

Huge Areas Of China Swamped

SHANGHAI (Reuters)—Great areas of southern Shantung province still look like huge lakes from the air despite the fact that the devastating central-east China floods have obviously receded.

The third of the country's eastern rivers—the Hwai—appeared to have been flooding fairly badly in the lower reaches, while further north in Shantung many smaller rivers had overflowed their banks.

Small boats dotted the landscape at a place where thousands of workers could be seen repairing a dike.

More than 17,000 square miles of land have been flooded in Shantung and Honan.

More heavy rains are forecast this week, the New China News Agency reported yesterday.

Skeltons Meet the Pope

Comedian Red Skelton and his wife, on a world tour with their children, Valentina, 10, and Richard, nine, victim of fatal leukemia, are shown with His Holiness Pope Pius XII. Private audience was a high point of the world tour Skelton is taking his son on in an attempt to show him as many of the world's wonders as possible in the short time he has of life.—(CPC)

World Too Big For Dying Boy

ROME (AP)—The world has proved too big for a nine-year-old boy who hoped to see its wonders before he dies.

Comedian Red Skelton took his pallid, thin son Richard aboard a plane for home Wednesday and called off the rest of what had been planned as a two-month tour of the sights of Europe.

Richard, his mother and father and his sister Valentina all were smiling as they boarded the plane for New York.

Skelton said they weren't leaving because of any change in Richard's condition. The boy is suffering from leukemia, a cancer of the blood, from which doctors say he cannot recover.

"We are all tired," Skelton explained. "We are going home."

Richard tried gamely to see the sights his father had promised him—every great wonder of the world that a little boy might like to see. It was too much.

Richard saw Copenhagen, then Geneva, and then Rome. He was to have gazed on the ruins of Pompeii—the sight he said he wanted to see most of anything on earth. Then they were to visit Spain, the island of Majorca, England, Germany, the Azores, Mexico—and maybe the Orient.

But the boy appeared too tired to go on after they reached here, where he had a private audience with Pope Pius and saw the Colosseum.

Indian Charged

Cleared of Murder, Up for Rape Tries

MONTREAL (CP)—Johnny, 28-year-old Indian, from for voluntary statement on an attempted rape charge, 24 hours after dismissal of a murder charge against him.

Gunmen Flee With $10,000

MONTREAL (CP)—Two gunmen and an accomplice who drove the getaway car escaped Wednesday with more than $10,000 from a bank holdup. The woman teller who knew the various vault combinations fainted and thereby saved the bank another estimated $10,000. Police said the two armed and masked men hid in the furnace room until the bank—an east-end branch of La Banque Canadienne Nationale—opened for business, then burst into the main lobby and herded the staff into the vault at gunpoint.

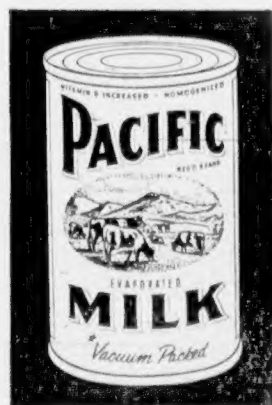

Judge Henri Masson—Loranger dismissed the murder charge Wednesday on grounds there was insufficient evidence to support it or a reduced manslaughter count.

The murder charge arose from the death by drowning last month of student nurse Mireille Levesque, 20, formerly of Val d'Or, Que. The Crown claims she was drowned while trying to swim the St. Lawrence River for help after Montreal allegedly made improper advances on her and two women friends, Mrs. Jean Gates, 28, and Elaine Bellavance of Montreal.

He faces voluntary statement on an attempted rape charge involving Mrs. Gates.

An attempted rape charge involving the dead nurse is also expected to be heard today.

Famed Regiments to Lose Identity

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's many crack regiments will lose their identity in a new push-button nuclear battalions—the Third Goldstreams lopped-date back to the 17th cen and the Queen's Own Cameron announced Wednesday that she lost their separate identity. The new regiments are designed to produce and defend the front line. The rest of the infantry will be formed in 1960 by Oliver Cromwell. Among the amalgamated regiments will be the East Yorkshires whose battle honors include the capture of Quebec in 1759. The new regiments will be formed from two England's first mail coach ran storied Scottish highland regiments between London and Bristol in 1784. The two brigade battalions to be formed—the Seaforth Highlanders 1784.

Short-Handed Irish Dash Pils' Hopes; 'New' Line Sparks Last-Quarter Rally

Victoria Shamrocks, cutting loose with an awesome display of scoring in the final quarter, all but eliminated Vancouver Pilseners from the Inter-City League playoff picture last night. The nine-minute mark had won a 11-8 victory before 2,000 howl-walkers scored an another

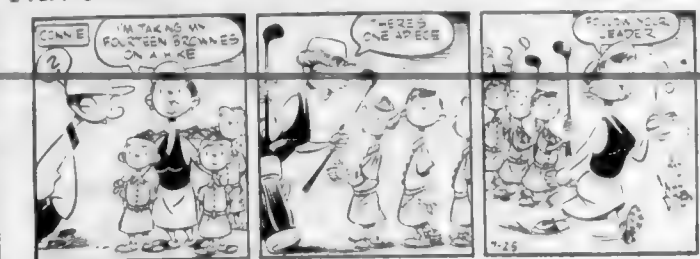

The defeat dealt a crippling blow to the Shamrocks' playoff hopes. With only four games left to play, they find themselves in a tight race for the playoffs. The Shamrocks, playing a schedule of four games, came up with a victory over the Pilseners. The Shamrocks' new line, consisting of Don Sheehy, Ron Hemminger, and Bill Barbour, got the team back on track. The Shamrocks were never really in trouble.

Barbour was again the stand-out player for the Pils. Although he was the victim of some tough checking, he led his team with two goals and an assist. Sheehy was also a key player, scoring a goal and assisting in another. The Shamrocks were ahead 11-8 at the end of the first quarter.

Sub-Killers To Get New Sonar

OTTAWA (C.P.)—New equipment to improve the sub-killing potential of Canada's fleet is in the final stages of development. Dr. John E. Keyston, vice-chairman of the defence research committee, says the new equipment—an advanced type of sonar—will be installed in Royal Canadian Navy ships in the next three or four years.

U.S. INTERESTED
Dr. Keyston head of the naval research establishment at Dartmouth, N.S., for seven years before coming to Ottawa last month, said the United Kingdom and United States have shown keen interest in the Canadian development, a major contribution to clear missiles.

Sonar, the new name for Asdic, is underwater detection based on a sound signal which returns an echo when it strikes an object. It works in the same way as radar which is based on a radio signal.

MAJOR DRAWBACK
Sonar's major drawback has been that its signal can be distorted to uselessness by variations in ocean temperatures, currents and salt content.

Dr. Keyston compared this drawback to a cloud coming between a person using a telescope and an aircraft he is watching. However, he added, the new equipment goes a long way in overcoming this difficulty.

RANGE SECRET
Figures on the range and accuracy of Sonar are secret but Dr. Keyston said there have been big improvements since the Second World War. At that time, a range of 2,500 yards for Asdic was considered excellent.

Dr. Keyston remarked, however, that there have also been improvements in the use of the material.

Site will probably be determined after consultation with the Capital Region Planning Board, he said.

As soon as a suitable design for an archway is approved by the provincial department of public works, the working drawings will be started. The archway itself might start to take shape within two months.

DESIGN TALKS
Chamber secretary-manager Arnold Webb said yesterday that the archway design will be discussed with deputy public works minister Clive Campbell in a few days.

"What we are aiming for is the use of these historic materials in such a way that they will not be lost to the community," Mr. Webb said.

Beauties Have Last Word

Latest post-mortem on criticized Miss Universe pageant involves Sonia Hamilton (Miss England), left, who has denied rumors she was over age limit of 28. Like many of disgruntled contestants, Sonia complained that judges didn't place enough emphasis on the face. Others grumbled that Gerti Daub, centre (Miss Germany) should have won, while Canada's Gloria Noakes, right, termed the whole contest a "rat race." She turned down four movie offers to return to her fiancé in Toronto and wedding bells. "They can have all that glamour," she sniffed.—(C.P.C.)

At Park Entrance

Ruins Offer Material For Centennial Arch

Enough brick and stone has been salvaged from the ruins of Government House and the original legislative buildings to erect a centennial archway at one of the entrances to Beacon Hill Park.

Victoria masonry contractor Ben Tennyson, who heads a special Chamber of Commerce sub-committee composed of chamber, city and provincial officials, said yesterday that there were "plenty" of material available to erect a proper arch.

OWN PROJECT
He added that the way is expected to be cleared soon for a start on the chamber's own centennial project.

Tentative site for the arch way was astraddle a proposed eastern extension of Superior Street as a new entrance at the north end of Beacon Hill Park. It is understood now that any extension of Superior would make the street into a thoroughfare linking the government buildings area with Fairview.

How to Reduce Swollen, Painful Piles

Relieve Itching, Soreness and Pain

Miss Penny Jenkins of Toronto, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell of Vancouver to the party yesterday, is pictured as she was received by the Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross. The Hon. and Mrs. Ross stood for two hours receiving the 1,000 guests.

A group of young Victorians at the garden party were Miss Susan Egan, Miss Edna Stenner and Miss Gillian Edgell.

One of the most garden parties in 1957, a white lace dress with a blue sash and large lace collar was worn by Miss W. J. Jones. Miss J. Jones of Vancouver, who is sitting in the foreground, is the daughter of the Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross.

Miss Elizabeth Ann Spencer of Vancouver, who is sitting next to Mrs. D. Ross and Miss B. J. Jones, is the daughter of the Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross.

Mrs. Glen McDonald pictured chatting with Mr. H. A. D. Oliver, consul for Latvia.

Miss Fran Fendrie was one of the many young people attending the party. She is pictured with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Humber.

Mrs. Norman Coxall of Toronto and Miss J. Humber are highly amused by something they noticed in the crowd at the party. Mr. and Mrs. Coxall are holidaying in Victoria and are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barralough. Their one-month-old daughter will be christened in St. John's Anglican Church on August 4 when she will receive the names Alexis Miriam.

Better than Ever Guests Said 'It Was a Lovely Party'

Despite the fact that the garden party was held on a day when the weather was not ideal, the guests who attended the party yesterday said it was a lovely party. The party was held in the garden of the Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross, and was attended by about 1,000 guests. The party was a success, and the guests who attended the party said it was a lovely party. Premier's Hint PGE Railroad Shoppers Will Find Door Open Premier Bennett yesterday hinted that the door to the PGE railroad shoppers will be open. He said that the PGE will be asked to open a track to John and the station. "No person has more to do with the PGE than the PGE itself," he said. "The PGE is a public utility and it is the duty of the government to see that it is run in the public interest."

Fish Wheel Old Indian Method Beats Modern Idea

HOPE, B.C. (CP) — A fish wheel, designed by Alaskan Indians to trap salmon, is being used on the Fraser River near here by the federal fisheries department in tagging and timing salmon migration.

The two saw an ancient fish wheel anchored offshore in the Yukon River near Dawson City, Y.T. The wheel was of the type in common use by Indians in Alaska and the Yukon.

The wheel consists of two baskets of type nets made by stretching seine mesh on a framework of five J-shaped steel pipes. The nets are fastened to a central steel shaft which turns on bearings mounted on four pontoons, each 22 feet long. The rig is secured to the river bank by steel cables attached to winches.

Three wheels have been built for operation on the Fraser. Another may be used on the Nass River, in northern B.C.

The present rig, built by the department's Pacific region, is using a 20th century version of a fish wheel, and consider it better than modern methods.

Plans were drawn up and a fish wheel, adapted to local use, was constructed.

Mr. McLaren says the wheel is "a pronounced improvement" over the hand-dip-netting method of tagging. Fewer persons are required to maintain a 24-hour operation and there is less danger of injury to the salmon.

Church Treasures Old, Rare Books

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A 1,200-volume library of old and rare books dating back to 1577 will be an attraction when the rectory of St. Mark's Church here celebrates its centenary this summer.

The Anglican parish itself has a history going back to 1792, and it was in that year that the library was started by the first rector, Rev. John Addison. Succeeding rectors have added to it through the years. The rectory was built in 1837.

The present rector, Rev. C.N.P. Blagrove, says the library has never been completely catalogued. The valuable collection now is in his study, crowded to the ceiling with shelves of leather-bound classical and theological volumes.

Historic editions of the Bible in the library is a Geneva Bible, printed in French in 1577.

Another Bible is a copy of the Geneva Bible, printed in English in 1577.

Red Cross to See Rebel PoW Camps

GENEVA (AP) — The Algerian rebels have promised to permit Red Cross inspection of camps for French prisoners in the near future, the International Red Cross committee said today.

The committee's delegates have inspected 150 French detention camps for rebel prisoners, in accordance with the Geneva convention on prisoners of war. The Algerian "army of liberation" has hitherto refused to permit similar inspection of camps in rebel-held territory.

The International Red Cross committee now has received an assurance it may visit a certain number of French prisoners in the near future, the announcement said.

The rebel authorities also have promised to provide a list of the names of the prisoners concerned.

Civil Service Everything To Stop For Lunch

Provincial civil servants, starting Aug. 1, will be given a uniform lunch hour.

As a result government offices will be closed from 12 noon to 1:10 p.m. daily.

Present method of staggering the lunch hour to keep government offices going on a skeleton staff "has proved confusing, both to the public and to employees because of lack of knowledge in respect to the hours of attendance, particularly to key officials, resulting in repetitious visits and telephone calls," Premier Bennett stated yesterday.

One general luncheon period for staffs will promote greater efficiency and ensure a higher standard of service to the public, he added.

The order will not apply to necessary services and offices which are required to remain open throughout the day by statute. It does apply to government offices throughout B.C.

Living Costs At New High Below Border

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government's cost-of-living index bounced up another one-half of one per cent in June to its 10th record high in as many months.

Food prices were reported to have jumped 1.4 per cent from May to June. That was the major factor in the advance, which carried the consumer price index to 120.2 per cent of the 1947-1949 average.

However, the price advance was an across-the-board affair. The average prices of all commodities except foods rose 0.2 per cent and the cost of services — transportation, laundry, repairs, medical bills and the like — also climbed 0.2 per cent.

Shipbuilding Japan Holds Lead

LONDON (AP) — Japan held her place as the world's leading ship-building nation during the second quarter of 1957, Lloyd's Register of Shipping reported Tuesday.

The three-month return-giving figures for every shipbuilding nation except Red China and Russia—showed that 97 ships totalling 502,873 tons, were launched from Japanese yards during the period and 93 ships of 600,233 tons were completed.

Britain, driven into second place last year, launched 72 ships of 369,250 tons during the quarter and completed 81 of 445,170 tons.

West Germany launched 104 ships—more than any other nation—during the period, but gross tonnage of 311,875 was well below the British and Japanese levels. German completions were 97 for a gross tonnage of 264,957.

Suena took fourth place with 22 ships of 183,321 tons launched and 19 ships of 183,380 tons.

The Netherlands jumped ahead of the United States into fifth place with 54 ships of 138,920 tons launched and 49 ships of 119,208 tons completed.

American shipyards launched 16 ships of 47,767 tons during the period and completed 18 of 129,033 tons.

The two saw an ancient fish wheel anchored offshore in the Yukon River near Dawson City, Y.T. The wheel was of the type in common use by Indians in Alaska and the Yukon.

The wheel consists of two baskets of type nets made by stretching seine mesh on a framework of five J-shaped steel pipes. The nets are fastened to a central steel shaft which turns on bearings mounted on four pontoons, each 22 feet long. The rig is secured to the river bank by steel cables attached to winches.

Hopeful Zoo Keeper Batling Parrot Ban

VANCOUVER (CP) — Overtures are being made to the federal government to raise a ban on parrots, a group of immigrants long classified as "undesirable."

Curator Alan Best of Vancouver's Stanley Park Zoo says unofficial approaches have met with "encouraging" results in a campaign to have the birds admitted under close government supervision for display in zoos across the country.

Strict quarantine regulations would eliminate the hazard of spreading disease to the public and careful supervision would reduce the risk of social indiscretions, zoo officials say.

How Jaded Jailbird Swayed the Throne

By BRUCE LOWTHER

The brilliant, almost jaded, almost becomes the power behind the throne, "A Face in the Crowd" which opened at the Royal Theatre yesterday is the most exciting picture of the year.

gives a powerful performance as "Lonesome" Rhodes, a country boy who wheels his way to the top, then finds he's over his head. SAME TEAM "Face in the Crowd" is by the duo who made "On the Waterfront" — author Budd Schulberg and producer-director Elia Kazan.

Griffith plays Lonesome Rhodes, a hard-drinking, hard-swinging, hard-singing tramp found in an Arkansas jail by radio-woman Patricia Neal. His first words: "What do I get out of this? I mean Mr. Me. Myself and I?"

What he gets is power as he becomes a radio star. The picture is a powerful performance by Griffith, who plays Lonesome Rhodes, a hard-drinking, hard-swinging, hard-singing tramp found in an Arkansas jail by radio-woman Patricia Neal. His first words: "What do I get out of this? I mean Mr. Me. Myself and I?"

Women Urge 'Sex Fiends Should Be Lashed'

OTTAWA (CP)—Maximum punishment for sex offenders, including the lash when victims are children, was requested today by the Conservative Women's Club of Ottawa.

The club's executive, headed by the president, Jeanne Travers, called on Assistant Crown Attorney Don Chisholm to protest against what Miss Travers described as "rocky" sentences in recent sex cases.

She said a man recently was given a month in jail for a sex offence.

The club called for maximum instead of minimum sentences and confinement for psychiatric treatment of all offenders.

It asked for corporal punishment where children are the victims.

Children and old people are generally immune to seasickness.

Island Liberals Plan Overhaul

Overhaul of party organization is planned by Vancouver Island Liberals, in the wake of the national government's recent defeat.

Alastair Fraser, defeated Liberal candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, will be principal speaker at a meeting at Liberal headquarters tonight.

Egyptian Aid for Hitler Admitted in New Book

NEW YORK (UP)—Egyptian efforts to help Hitler win the Second World War and to halt America's "imperialist" economy in the Middle East are related in a book, "Revolt on the Nile" published here yesterday.

The author is Col. Amr El-Sayid, one of Gamal Abdel Nasser's "young officers" revolutionaries.

Much of the book is devoted to the secret efforts by the young set of gaining a foothold in the Middle East as a prelude to effort as well as to overthrow the world's trade routes where King Farouk. Of one unsuccess they could keep an eye on the Russian colossus.

City Police On Lookout

Victoria police, together with other forces in Western Canada, have been asked to watch for a 21-year-old youth wanted for questioning in Calgary in the theft Monday of 153 sets of matched diamond engagement and wedding rings and 30 watches — was described as follows:

Victim was a Calgary jewelry traveller who had befriended the youth. Calgary police said the youth looks older than his 21 years. He is five feet, eight inches tall, and weighs 127 pounds. Very dark complexioned, he has brown wavy hair, blue eyes and good teeth. He speaks with a slight accent, and is probably left-handed.

He usually works as a waiter, an upholsterer or a miner. Theft of the jewelry — 153 sets of matched diamond engagement and wedding rings and 30 watches — was described as follows: The traveller told police a hitchhiker he had once picked up had come to him in Calgary, and been allowed to sleep in his basement. Sunday night the traveller and his wife went out and left the young man with the children. When the family awoke Monday, the young man was gone.

Magistrate Studies Crown Evidence In Robbery Case

Preliminary hearing of Donald William Carson, 615 Grenville, complainant in the case, had told police he'd been beaten and robbed of $110 on the night of July 8 on Harbor Road in the industrial reserve. His car, in which he and four others had driven to the spot after drinking together at a downtown club, was found next day near Lampson Street School.

After hearing crown witnesses, Magistrate Henry C. said he wanted to study their evidence before reaching a decision.

Donald William Carson, 615 Grenville, complainant in the case, had told police he'd been beaten and robbed of $110 on the night of July 8 on Harbor Road in the industrial reserve. His car, in which he and four others had driven to the spot after drinking together at a downtown club, was found next day near Lampson Street School.

Carson told the court that an accused was in the front of the car with him, but under cross-examination by defence counsel George Gregory, admitted he was not sure of this.

Carson said that at the Harbor Road location he was attacked, but he could not say by whom. As he lay on the ground, he said he felt his wallet being taken from his pocket.

When Mr. Gregory suggested that the only reason he had charged Quaitie with the offence was because his was the only name he could remember among his companions of that evening, Carson replied: "That's right, sir."

Second witness heard was Douglas Cameron, 805 Intervale, who has pleaded guilty to being in possession of a sum of money knowing it to have been stolen. He was ruled by the magistrate to be a hostile witness to the prosecution.

Cameron, remanded earlier yesterday to Friday for a probation report on his own charge, testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

On the stand Cameron said he had left the car for a few minutes with Paul G. Cook, RCN, who has pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with violence.

When they returned, he said, Carson and Quaitie were still in the car with a bottle of wine, and he himself fell asleep. Next thing he knew was being awakened in the car near Lampson Street School.

He and three others walked to his house nearby and in a woodshed split $72 which someone unknown had given him.

Cameron said "yes" to a suggestion that earlier in the evening Cook had told him he intended to rob Carson.

Technical evidence was proffered by Det. Robert Mair, Det. Sgt. Louis Callan, and T. W. McConnell Davis.

Charge of possession of stolen jackets, valued at less than $50 was dismissed against George Lee, who was remanded to July 25 for a probation report on a second charge of possession of blankets.
